EXPLODED KILLING SMITH THE ENGINEER

OTHERS FATALLY HURT NEAR COLUMBUS TODAY.

A DOZEN CARS WERE PILED UP.

Double Header on the C. S. & H. Railroad Jumped the Track Near Shepard's Today.

Columbus, O., Feb. 19.—A double-header on the Columbus, Shawnee and Hocking railway freight train jumped the track at Shepard's Station at 5 o clock this morning piling up a dozen cars and two engines.

One of the engines blew up, instantly killing Engineer William Smith, and fatally injuring Fireman Frank Winterringer. He had both legs broken, head cut, and arms and back badly scalded. P. S. Sweet of Columbus, engineer, and J. F. Dixon of Lewis Center, fireman on the second engine, were badly scalded and nearly all of the train crew were injured in some manner. Ambulances from this city removed the injured to Protestant Hospital and conveyed the remains of Smith to his home in this city.

ON THE PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL MONDAY.

WELLINGTON SAYS SCHLEY WAS UNJUSTLY TREATED.

OPPOSES THE PENDING BILL.

Because Congress Has No Right to Tax a People Without Representation and Without Consent.

Washington, Feb. 19.—It was agreed by the Senate that a final vote on the Philippine tariff bill, and the pending amendments should be taken next Monday at 4 o'clock.

Senator Wellington of Maryland spoke in opposition to the bill.

Mr. Wellington's address covered the Philippine question generally. He set forth his views forcefully. He had always been a Republican, he said, but he had come to the parting of the ways with his party in 1898 when it developed "its imperialistic tenden cies." He opposed the pending tariff bill because he did not think congress had the right to enact legislation by which people were taxed without representation, and governed without their consent.

Mr. Wellington said he had been a Republican, a protectionist and a believer in a gold standard. He was opposed to the Spanish war and believed that Cuban independence could have been brought about by diplomatic negotiations. Then came the imperialistic tendencies of the Republican party and with them he could not agree.

Mr. Wellington referred to the battle off Santiago, where the American squadron, he declared, was under the command of Rear Admiral Sampson, but was led by the "Maryland hero" Admiral Schley.

"From that moment," he continued, "the end was won. Schley commanded the vessels of the American squadron in that engagement. He stood in the midst of that battle and won out as no other battle was ever won before. But the administration has been unjust to him as it has been to the Cubans and Filipinos."

He ridiculed Mr. Lodge's assertion that congress should make no promises to the Filipinos.

His opinion was that in the Philippines the inhabitants ought to be permitted to establish their own government, under the protection, if necessary, of the United States.

Absence may make the heart grow fonder, but so do presents.

Today Testified in a Suit at Chicago in in Which He Was Defendant Before Judge Carey.

Chicago, Feb. 19.— Governor Nash appeared as defendant in Judge B. Carey's court today in a suit brought by Mrs. Julia M. Cooney of Chicago, to recover $5000 on a note executed 10 years ago by the American installment company of Columbus, of which Nash was president, and the husband of the plaintiff manager, and when the Governor took the stand he testified that money due on the note had been paid to Mr. Cooney. Mrs. Cooney admitted the fact, but contended under the Ohio law she had the right to transact her own business.

MUST BE STOPPED AT AKRON SAYS THE MAYOR.

FOUR BUCHTEL STUDENTS ARE IN TROUBLE.

CHAS. MACHNER WAS INJURED

Boy Found With Hands and Feet Tied and Blood Flowing From a Scalp Wound.

Akron, O., Feb. 19.—Affidavits have been prepared in police court for the arrest of four Buchtel academy students on the charge of hazing. The trouble occurred at the academy on Monday night. Charles S. Machner a son of Sigmond Machner, and a student at the academy was rendered unconscious, his father claims, and was taken to his home in a cab by Dr. A. B Church, president of the college. When Machner was found his hands and feet were tied and blood was flowing from a scalp wound, it is said. Two physicians dressed Machner's wounds. Mayor Doyle this morning expressed himself as radically opposed to the college hazing process, and says if it is being practiced at Buchtel or any other college in Akron, it must and will be stopped. This is said to be the first time that prosecution has been started in Ohio against hazing.

Angell's New Rule.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 19.—President Angell of the Michigan University, has issued an edict that students' smokers with beer accompaniments must be tabooed. Some time ago the senior class gave a barbecue which developed into a glorious drunk. The senior "Lits" had advertised a "hot old smoker" for this week, when Angel interfered.

"I do not wish to prevent stag gatherings among students, but I do intend to stop these beer drinking affairs. These are hurting the university," said Dr. Angell, stamping his foot emphatically and frowning ominously at a senior who called to expostulate.

MAY HAVE BEEN MADE IN THE ARREST

OF MISS BURNS FOR MURDER OF YOUNG BROOKS.

POLICE TODAY ARE INFORMED

That Brooks with a Woman Not Miss Burns Visited the Hotel—Shot By a Man.

New York, Feb. 19.—(Bulletin)—The hearing of Miss Florence Burns, charged with killing Walter S. Brooks adjourned for a few days by consent of both counsels this afternoon when the case came before Magistrate Correll.

New York, Feb. 19.—If the information be true which the police today have, a great mistake has been made in the arrest of Miss Florence Burns, who is charged with the murder of Walter S. Brooks, as related in Saturday's dispatches to the Advocate.

The substance of the information today is that Brooks went to the Glen Island hotel, not with the Burns girl, but with another young woman; that they seated themselves in a public room down stairs, had some drinks, and while sitting there another man came along, got into a dispute with Brooks, shot him and escaped with the woman. The information also included the details of how the young man got to the room.

Florence Burns was arraigned in Center street court yesterday afternoon.

Miss Burns for the first time was a bit nervous. The crowd of staring men disconcerted her. The examination was postponed until today to permit the parents and friends called as witnesses to attend the young man's funeral.

One of the Brooklyn newspapers prints a story saying Brooks was a member of a band of young men in Brooklyn whose principal object is the betraying of young women. The members of this band, the paper says, dress well, wear diamonds and are members of good families. This band is likened to that in Paterson, which became involved in the Jennie Bosschieter case. The person quoted in the Brooklyn paper says:

"If one half of the true state of affairs is brought out in the trial of Florence Burns the people of Brooklyn will simply throw up their hands in horror.

"Why, it was just a matter of bad luck that brought it on Brooks instead of any one of eight or ten young fellows in his set. They are all alike. They wear corsets and fancy vests. They are all under cover now, but they will be out again as soon as the scare of the murder of Walter Brooks blows over and they have got over the fear of exposure.

"Very few of these young men have turned 21 and yet there is a still younger crowd who try to ape them in everything they do.

"Although the pursuit of young women is the chief industry of this band there are other incidental amusements which have become habits with them. Some of these are check raising, robbing department or clothing stores by forged orders in the names of respectable persons, finding persons to pay for drunken revels in private rooms at hotels, luring youths into brace games of cards, and other occupations of the same nature.

"Some of these young men, it is declared, have been caught at check raising, but their families have saved them from exposure."

Mrs. Nutter's Death.

Mrs. Nutter, widow of the late Wm. Nutter, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Kislingbury, 56 Jefferson street, about three o clock Wednesday, of heart trouble, with which she had been afflicted for some time. The deceased was a woman who was well and favorably known in the community, and besides her daughter she leaves many friends to mourn her death. She was aged about 55 years. All the arrangements have not yet been perfected for the funeral as yet but it is thought that it will take place on Friday.

CONFIRMING REPORT OF THE RELEASE

OF MISS STONE, YET CABLE IS MOMENTARILY EXPECTED.

THE AMOUNT PAID WAS $72,500.

According to the Announcement in the Paris Temps, for the Missionary's Release.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 19—(Bulletin.)—This afternoon the American Board of Foreign Missions has as yet received no information verifying the reports published in Europe announcing Miss Stone's release though confirmation is expected every moment.

Paris, Feb. 19.—The Temps says Miss Stone has been released and that the brigands were paid $72,500.

MME. TSILKA'S HUSBAND

Arrested for Complicity in the Abduction of His Wife and Miss Stone, Missionary.

London, Feb. 19.—The Rev. Mr. Tsilka, who, according to the Constantinople correspondent of the Paris Temps, in a dispatch announcing the release of Miss Stone had been arrested on the charge of complicity in kidnaping of the missionary, is the husband of Mme. Tsilka, Miss Stone s companion.

It was announced recently that the Turkinsh authorities suspected the Rev. Mr. Tsilka of complicity in the abduction of the missionaries.

The companion in captivity of Miss Stone was Madame K. S. Tsilka, a Bulgarian woman, wife of Mr. Tsilka, a Macedonian woman, wife of Mr. Tsilka, a Macedonian teacher of Sammakov. Miss Stone while traveling with Madame Tsilka and a party of about fifteen friends was captured by brigands in the district of Salonica, September 3. Since that time vigorous efforts have been made by the United States government and by missionaries to obtain the release of the cap tives.

The brigands demanded a ransom of 25,000 pounds (Turkish) but only $72,500 was collected for the ransom and this sum was paid over to the brigands February 6 by M. Gargiulo, chief dragoman of the American legation at Constantinople and W. W. Peet treasurer of the American mission at Constantinople, who met the brigands on the road to the Podrom monastery.

Madame Tsilka was educated in the Northfield Seminary. At the time of receiving her American training and education she was Miss Stephanor, a Bulgarian. Having been converted in childhood to the Christian belief she came to America after having refused to marry the man of her parents' choice.

Dr. Dwight L. Moody becoming interested in her welfare found a place for her in his noted school. Having finished her training at that institution she became a trained nurse.

While engaged in her professional duties in the Adirondacks, she became acquainted with Mr. Tsilka, a Macedonian who has also been educated in the United States. At that period he was preparing for work as a medical missionary. Soon after the completion of their training the couple were married and went to Bulgaria where they at once entered upon missionary work

Miss Stone is one of the missionaries of the American Board of foreign missions. She has been attached to the Salonica mission since 1878. She was born at Roxbury, Mass., and her home is in Chelsea, Mass., and her mother still resides there. Four of Miss Stone's brothers are in business in Boston.

CAUSED DEATH OF WOMAN AT UTICA

BABY BORN AFTER ACCIDENT IS DOING WELL.

HER SKULL WAS FRACTURED.

Mrs. Wm. Jewell, Aged 23 Years, Leaves a Husband and Two Children.

Utica, O., Feb. 19.—Mrs. William Jewell, aged 23 years, died at her home here at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon as a result of an accident suffered by her just a week ago tonight. At that time she was going out the back door of her residence, carrying a lamp in each hand, and slipped on the ice, falling to the ground. In the fall she struck her head and had since been in a semi-conscious condition. It is thought that in her fall the skull was fractured, which caused her death.

On last Sunday Mrs. Jewell gave birth to a child which is now living and doing well.

The deceased was a highly respected young woman, and leaves a husband and two children. The funeral will take place from the Bell church Thursday morning at 10 o clock Rev Mr. Rife conducting the services.

LAW MADE NECESSARY BY THE AGITATORS

RIOTING RENEWED LAST NIGHT AT BARCELONA.

PEOPLE STRUCK WITH TERROR.

Still Trying to Prevent Sale of Food. A Famine is Threatened—Warships on the Scene.

Barcelona, Feb. 19—(Bulletin)—The rioting by strikers was renewed today Troops charged the strikers and four were killed and six wounded.

Barcelona, Feb. 19.—The city of Barcelona is in control of the troops, but isolated bands of strikers are still doing considerable rioting, and the officials have called on the blue jackets

A striker fired on the guard, who in return shot and killed the man who fired on him. A large lumber yard has been burned by incendiaries and several stores have been pilaged.

The captain general of Barcelona had summoned a meeting of the proprietors of the metal works, at which he will recommend granting the strikers' demands for nine hours' work per day.

Rioting was renewed here last evening, and crowds of strikers paraded the streets, doing extensive damage. The troops charged them repeatedly, but only succeeded in dispersing them on opening fire. The strikers then assembled in large numbers in the outskirts of the city. It is feared they meditate an attack upon the factories. Troops have proceeded to the factories to be in readiness for an emergency.

A serious collision between the troops and the strikers occurred yesterday at San Martin, a village in the suburbs. Here the troops fired on the mob, killing three and wounding six. At Badalena the mob attacked the gendarmes and the cavalry who were protecting the street car service and a serious melee followed in which one person was killed and three were wounded. At Sabadell, also in the suburbs the strikers burned the octrol tax offices and a convent.

Troops have been sent to Sabadell and to other places to suppress the disorders.

MILITARY DISCIPLINE.

Madrid, Feb. 19.—The strike movement threatens to involve the whole of the province of Catalonia. The strict military discipline makes it difficult to get news. One of the chief aims of the strikers at Barcelona seems to be to prevent the sale of food. The slaughter houses are filled with meat, which the strikers prevent from being delivered to the shops. Similar conditions exist in the other food markets with the result that the prices are rising and a famine is feared. It is believed the strikers have secreted stores of provisions.

REPUBLICAN TAX MEASURE KILLED

Bills to Levy Special Taxes on Fraternal Insurance Associations Meet Timely Death by Democratic Action.

The action of the Democrats in the Legislature at Columbus in holding a caucus and deciding upon united opposition against the bills to tax the fraternal insurance associations of Ohio was both proper and timely. The Republican leaders in both houses have numerous schemes of special taxation, one of which is to tax insurance companies. But the big insurance companies being typical corporations, and therefore under the class that are always favored by the Republican managers in recent years, have made demand upon these party managers that if any insurance companies are taxed, the fraternal institutions must be included.

But the Democratic members of the Legislature hold to the view that the fraternal insurance institutions of the state are charitable, philanthropic and humanitarian in their nature and scope, and to tax such an institution devoted to the relief of mankind is contrary to the spirit of the constitution and policy of this state.

The position taken by the Democratic members of the Legislature is that the benefit fund of the fraternal insurance associations is simply a contribution made by the members for the benefit of widows and orphans of deceased members and can, in the broadest application, only be considered a systematic charity for the protection of the home and well being of the dependents of the members, and does not constitute property taxable within the intent and spirit of the constitution of the state.

Every beneficiary of these fraternal institutions owes a debt of gratitude to the prompt and timely action of the Democratic legislative caucus, for this united opposition killed the Republican taxation measure most effectually. True, the Democracy are in the minority in the Legislature, but the party's united opposition to such a measure, backed as it would be by such a wide and pronounced sentiment throughout the State, is more than the Republican managers care to confront. Consequently the State's fraternal associations will not be taxed. The Republican managers have been compelled to back down, thanks to the Democracy.

LEAVE THE UNITED STATES OUT.

A distressing feature of the English parliamentary debate on the subject of the Anglo-Japan treaty of alliance is that portion of the eloquent dialogue which assures the English people that the United States are taking an active interest in the matter, are backing England and will support the alliance by moral means and by diplomatic pressure if it shall become necessary.

All the Englishmen in England may rest assured that the people of the United States do not care a continental profane word for all that may be done in regard to the interests of European and Asiatic powers in the far east. They must settle their affairs in that part of the world without our interference.

True, we have a job lot of islands in that neighborhood which are on our hands to take care of and protect. But that is all that concerns us, and England should understand that the use of our name in any other matter of European and Asiatic diplomacy is absolutely without our authority.

LOCAL OPTION BILLS

BEFORE THE LEGISLATURE TO BE REMODELED

Discussion on Temperance Measures to be Long Drawn Out and May Lengthen the Session.

Columbus, O., Feb 19.—[Special] Governor Nash's desire to make taxation measures the leading questions before the state legislature has not been altogether successful up to this time. The temperance problem is the one that occupies the front seat now.

In papers last week the following lines were printed:

"The really pressing question of the week in legislative matters will undoubtedly be that of temperance—the local option phase of temperance. Friends of the Beal measure are confident not only of its passage, but of its passage this week by a comfortable majority. By adjournment at the end of the week, if there be no hitch or halt in the plans, the bill will have become a law."

When the foregoing was written the situation was covered as it existed a week ago, but since then there has been a wonderful change. The advocates of the temperance measures have received a decided set back.

The Beal bill, which contemplated giving local option in cities and towns, was thoroughly discussed at a meeting of the temperance committee, and the result is that the advocates of the measure have made a complete change of front, and without hearing from the opposition. The Beal bill proposed a special election in wards of cities on petition of 40 per cent of the voters, and a special election in smaller towns on petition of 25 per cent of the voters.

The ward feature has been wholly abandoned by the temperance advocates, and it is said now that they propose to amend the measure so that an election shall be held in any municipality if 40 per cent of the voters petition therefor. It is intimated that another bill will be introduced later which will provide that a ward shall go "dry" if 51 per cent of the voters shall petition.

The press of the state is taking a hand in the temperance fight, and much to the surprise of many people, numbers of the leading papers have advanced arguments against the proposed bills. The Toledo Times recently printed this editorial:

"The Times has believed and believes still that temperance legislation ought to be along more practical lines—that the saloon ought to be kept out of a residence community by vigorous restrictions surrounding its establishment instead of being driven out after it is entrenched. A number of states have illustrated for us most effectively how this may be done, and we may well learn from them the efficient means of regulation. The Beal bill may do some good and probably will, but it is, after all, only another of the sort of measures which, after it is on the statute books, at most places will find poor executors to see to the enforcement of its provisions. Ohio has many such laws and it seems poor policy to add to them."

The attitude of the anti-saloon people is generally accepted as being an acknowledgment of their signal defeat. They admit they could not pass the measures as drawn and they propose to amend them.

This means that the fight will be prolonged in the general assembly. The temperance committee of the house will have hearing this week and announce that the proposition will be left open for some time. This action of the Beal bill before the committee means that the whole proposition will have to be fought over, entailing time and labor on the part of the legislature and expense for the state.

Governor Nash has been advocating "reform" in the matter of expenditures for running the state. He hoped to have a short session of the legislature and in that way cut out much expense. Without criticising either a Republican or Democratic administration or majority in the general assembly, it may be said that long sessions mean great expense to the taxpayers. Members of the legislature have good opportunities, during prolonged sessions, to run through the legislative mill laws that are worthless and which many times carry large expenditures. The fight over the temperance problem, over taxation and the abandonment of the canals, is sure to cause a long session, and the result will be the enactment of laws that are costly, useless and in many instances idiotic.

The SPORTING WORLD

Scope of Olympian Games.

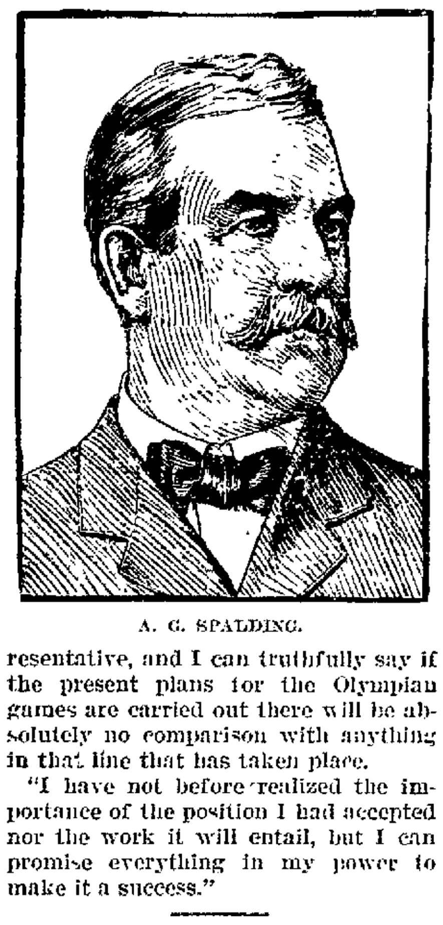
A. G. Spalding, who has been appointed chairman of the final athletic committee of the Olympian games of 1904, has had a conference in Chicago with H. J. Furber, chairman of the general committee, for the purpose of discussing the details which would fall to the athletic committee. After the conference Mr. Spalding said:

"I had no idea of the scope of the undertaking planned by the general committee. It was astonishing to me in its proportions. Nothing like it has ever been undertaken.



A. G. SPALDING.

"I was on the athletic committee of the Paris exposition as American representative, and I can truthfully say if the present plans for the Olympian games are carried out there will be absolutely no comparison with anything in that line that has taken place.

"I have not before realized the importance of the position I had accepted nor the work it will entail, but I can promise everything in my power to make it a success."

Edward VII.'s Return to the Turf.

Something in the nature of a mild sensation has been caused in England by the announcement of entries for the spring handicaps which revealed the fact that King Edward has entered several horses in his own name. This is taken to mean that the King will publicly resume his beloved sport upon the expiration of the term of court mourning for Queen Victoria, who died Jan. 22 last.

Since that deplored event the sovereign's stables have been conducted under the name and colors of Lord Marcus Beresford, and it has been semiofficially intimated that the king would never again personally figure on the turf.

Following the announcement, it is taken for granted that Danny Maher, who has been engaged as the chief jockey of the Beresford stables for the coming season, will actually ride the king's horses, although no statement to that effect has been made.

The resumption of the sport by the king in his own person is hailed with joy by the sport loving element, which anticipates a lively and thriving season in consequence.

All the leading events are already filled. Among the Americans represented are Messrs. W. C. Whitney, J. R. Keene, W. K. Vanderbilt and Richard Croker.

A Spanish Jockey.

George E. Smith ("Pittsburg Phil") now has only five running horses in his string. They are: Chilton, three years old; Bonner, three years old; Dr. Preston, four years old; Royal Highness, five years old, and King Lief, four years old. The first three he regards as good as any of the runners, but the last two he does not think very much of. He has second call on Jockey Shaw's services and has in training a young Spaniard whom he thinks will make his mark as a jockey.

This youngster lives in Brooklyn, is fourteen years old and weighs only seventy-six pounds. He is a very bright boy and attracted Phil's attention, who took him in charge and turned him over to his brother William.

Star College Ball Player.

Arthur Bourgeois, one of the best all around baseball players in the western college world, has been signed by Manager Billy Clingman of the Milwaukee club. Clingman wired President Quin that he had signed the young man to a contract for 1902 and that he expected him to develop into one of the most sensational players of the year.

"Lanky Bob" Versus Jeffries.

George Dawson, a close friend of Fitzsimmons, raises the question of the Cornishman's age and intimates the latter is fifty. In referring to his fighting with Jeffries, Dawson says, "Fitzsimmons will be giving away at least sixty pounds in weight, twenty years in age and, besides, is handicapped by that bad right arm."

Quaker Rowing Affairs.

The University of Pennsylvania will probably be represented in the single scull race at the intercollegiate regatta next July. Captain Allyn, Coach Ward and Chairman Booth of the rowing committee are in favor of entering one or more men in the race if the chances of the varsity eight are not weakened thereby.

Views of Prominent Men on the New Treaty.

RUSSIA'S POSITION UNCHANGED.

Count Cassini Thinks His Country's Policy Will Not Be Affected—Japanese Minister Says Treaty Assures the "Open Door" In China—Stead Points Out Duty of America—France Fears England's New Alliance Will Make Her More Arrogant.

Here are some views of prominent men on the new treaty between Great Britain and Japan by which each nation is bound to joint action to preserve the integrity of China and Korea:

Count Cassini, the Russian embassador, gave to the New York World's Washington correspondent this statement:

"The publication of this treaty surprised me. I was first informed of it through the newspapers and naturally have had no opportunity to study such a grave and momentous departure from the programme hitherto observed by all powers in the orient. I may say, however, that I do not believe that its consummation will hasten or retard the evacuation of Manchuria by the Russian forces.

"The position of Russia in this respect has been made plain to the world. Acting in concert with the other powers, Russia strove to maintain peace and good order throughout the portions of territory placed within her guardianship. It has been announced frequently and solemnly that Russia harbors no design to annex Manchuria. As peaceful conditions were restored vast contingents of Russian forces have been withdrawn from China and Manchuria, and the territory has been returned to the administration of the Chinese officials.

"I do not believe this latest alliance will influence the Russian policy in any degree. We will perform our pledges unhurried, but faithfully and promptly. No act of Russia will cause a renewal of the horrors in China which shocked the world a year ago. So soon as the vast Russian commercial interests are safeguarded the Chinese administration will be restored in the territories belonging to China.

"To what extent the status quo in China is changed by the negotiation of this alliance is a matter for study. It is well understood that wherever the Russian influence extends in the orient the commerce of the United States and all other countries finds an open door. This fact is well understood by American exporters and by all who are interested."

The Korean minister, Minhui Cho, said:

"Korea is so small she could not resist the encroachment of Russia or any other great power. Japan is not strong enough to resist Russia alone. It was necessary that she should make an alliance with some strong military nation.

"The present alliance will be received by Korea with joy. Its consummation has been desired for a long time, and Korea has always been hopeful that it would be brought about. Since the completion of the Siberian railroad we have feared Russia, who needs ports to south and east. We know the dowager empress is very friendly to Russia, and it needed this great alliance to secure the integrity of the east."

Kogoro Takahira, the Japanese minister, said:

"This truly is not a menace to any power. It has been concluded simply to maintain the status quo in China. It assures the open door, a permanent peace and, as its plain purpose shows on its face, is intended to avoid complications. There is no menace behind it, and it involves no more than many other alliances now existing in Europe."

Lord Pauncefote, the British embassador, following his custom, declined to talk about the alliance.

The publication of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, which occasions some emotion, needs not be taken too seriously, said William T. Stead, the author, to the London correspondent of the New York Journal. It is one of the many theatrical coups in which Lord Salisbury excels. The Cyprus convention, by which he stole that island in return for a bogus promise of protection to Asiatic Turkey, is recalled by this latest deal with Japan. The only difference is that this time we steal nothing, so that the territorial status quo remains as before.

The treaty when examined by the light of Lord Lansdowne's explanations amounts to little more than a declaration that each of the powers is free to do what she considers her own interests demand, a fact which no one has ever disputed, and the right is not strengthened by its affirmation, for it is inherent to every sovereign state; but it entangles us in two ways: First, by binding us over to neutrality should Japan be involved with any one power in defense of her interests, which practically destroys any influence we might have for the purpose of promoting peace. This, however, is a small matter. What is more serious is the contingent pledge on our part to come to the support of Japan in certain circumstances should she find herself engaged with more than one power. In this the treaty follows the lines of the Franco-Russian alliance, but Lansdowne's covering letter reduces the obligation to a vanishing point, for Japan can only call us to assist her in a war in which she finds herself opposed to two powers.

Any aggressive war that is begun by either of the allies would deprive it of any right to appeal to its ally for assistance, and even if a quarrel were forced upon either of them they could not demand any help unless the original question involved the rights and interests of both.

What is wanted in the far east is not an Anglo-German agreement or an Anglo-Japanese agreement, but a general agreement on the part of all the European powers to some instrument corresponding to the treaty of Paris of 1856, whereby the independence and integrity of the Turkish empire are guaranteed by all the signatories binding themselves to forswear any separate designs on Chinese territory or isolated agreements with the Chinese emperor. The difficulty is to find a phrase corresponding to "European concert" for any such general international charter for the maintenance and independence of the Chinese and the maintenance of the "open door" secured by the treaty of Tientsin. Japan and the United States would have of necessity to be parties, and the presence of Japan renders it impossible to have a white man's concert and that of the United States equally precludes a "European concert."

The principle, however, is a sound one, and it would be well if the United States or Russia took this Anglo-Japanese treaty as a point of departure for raising the whole question as to whether the future of the Chinese empire might be made the subject of general international pact of peace. It would be necessary to exclude certain subjects, such as that of missionaries, in which Russia and Japan have no interest from this general international understanding, but the question of territorial integrity, the "open door" for trade and a general understanding on the lines of the Russian circular of 1900 ought not to be unattainable.

Former Attorney General John W. Griggs sees in the new treaty between Great Britain and Japan a great step toward the realization in the far east of policies of which the United States has been a determined and notable exponent. At his home in Paterson, N. J., Mr. Griggs said to a reporter of the New York Herald:

"This treaty is apparently a carrying out of the policy enunciated by Secretary Hay in his note of July, 1900. It should meet with approval in America, as it crystallizes into actual practice those ideas for which we have striven. It affects us only favorably and, as apparently giving to us just what we have wished—the 'open door'—should be welcomed here.

"This is on its face no altruistic move. Japan and England say that they have interests at stake, and they announce that where there is a coalition of powers against one the other will join its ally in resistance and that they will mutually exert their influence in peace to aid each other. The agreement recites that they seek to obtain in China and Korea equal opportunities for the commerce of all nations, and therein is distinctly to our advantage. We have long stood for the 'open door.'

"While we may welcome also the provision concerning the maintenance of the integrity of the Chinese empire, which has been a steadfast object of our policy, it is not certain whether Russia will look upon it with equal favor. I cannot tell how she will regard it in view of her Manchurian interests. Russia has always held the door open to us. She has avoided incommoding our merchants and has been friendly to us in China. We have nothing to complain of in her treatment of our business interests in Manchuria or elsewhere. As she has constantly protested her intention to continue that policy, we have had nothing especial to fear."

"France and other countries should take advantage of England's difficulties to settle old accounts. If England gets over the Transvaal muddle, her arrogance, with the fighting Japanese at her back, will be intolerable, and she will pester us not only in Newfoundland, but in the French isles of St. Pierre and Miquelon. We dislike the treaty because we dislike England and because it is against Russia.

"France has blocked England by the Yunnan railway, so there can't be any more natural expansion from Burma to Cochin China. I am glad the United States has not entered the game with England and Japan, though the foreign relations committee of the United States seemed to favor it. We are proud to think the United States sticks close to its traditional friends, Russia and France. They are the only two great nations which have never had anything but the most cordial relations with the United States.

"Chamberlain has worked the European coalition lie for all it was worth."

Why Easter Is a "Movable" Feast.

During all of March the sun is coming farther north. About the 20th it shines directly on the equator, and the day is just as long as the night. The time of the old Jewish passover, and hence of our Easter, depends on this date, says March Ladies' Home Journal. This latter always comes on the Sunday following the first full moon after the sun crosses the line. This accounts for it being so "movable" a feast.

Unique Exhibit For St. Louis Fair.

E. K. Lambert, a woodsman residing at Elam, Wash., will have a unique curiosity at the St. Louis exposition. It will be a collection of the English alphabet formed from the actual growth shapes he could find in the woods. It comprises roots and limbs of various kinds of trees, each letter being a substantial and accurate reproduction.

LITTLE GIRL

IS SAID TO HAVE BEEN BADLY TREATED.

Woman For Whom She Worked Has Been Arrested—The Child Cannot Recover.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 19.—The most flagrant case of inhuman treatment ever brought to light in Indianapolis was unearthed yesterday when the police arrested Mrs. Wm. Martineck. Mrs. Martineck is held to await developments in the condition of little Hazel Orme, a 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Orme. The girl is now lying at her parents' home at the point of death, her fragile frame racked with consumption. She cannot recover. The physicians declare that her illness is due to cruelty and starvation. When she sleeps, she cries out in terror and pleads pitifully not to be beaten. Hazel was allowed to go to the home of Mrs. Martineck about a year ago on the latter's promise that she would be well cared for. Officials discovered, they declare, that the child was forced to perform the most arduous labor, and that during her year's residence with Mrs. Martineck she was fed only on bread and water. Her back and sides are covered with deep welts, showing where she had been beaten.

Yale-Harvard Athletics.

Yale and Harvard have opened negotiations looking to the establishment of a new agreement in all branches of athletics for a term of several years. The plan for the new agreement is informal as yet, but the general wishes of each university are known to each other. At Yale there is a universal wish for a renewal of the five year agreement signed by Walter Camp for Yale and Billy Brooks for Harvard in 1897. This will expire March 1, 1902, and it is expected that before that date the new agreement will not only be signed by official representatives from the two universities, but will be heartily ratified at mass meetings of Yale and Harvard students.

During the five years of athletic relations just passed the Cutts case of the last football season has been the only incident which has caused any decided unpleasantness, but it is believed that before another agreement is signed a repetition of the case will be impossible. Harvard opened the negotiations looking toward a new agreement.

The history of Yale-Harvard contests shows that in five years just closed Harvard has excelled in baseball and track athletics. In rowing Yale has excelled her Cambridge rival. The crews met four times, as Yale had her crew at Henley in 1896, the first year of the agreement. Yale has won three of these four races. On the track the record is three victories in five years for Harvard. In baseball Harvard men have made their best showing, having won three of the four annual series with Yale played under the five year agreement. In football the record is most unique. Two of the games played were ties, neither side scoring. Yale won only one of the remaining games, but this was by the largest score of all —29 to 0.

SEVENTY MASONS

FROM NEWARK ATTEND LODGE AT HEBRON.

District Lecturer's Inspection—Degree Work—Banquet Followed—List of Those Present.

One of the biggest and best social events in secret society circles that has happened in Newark in many days was the visit of Newark Masons on Tuesday night to the Hebron Masonic Lodge, No. 116. Word was sent to District Lecturer A. F. Crayton that there would be work in Hebron Lodge on Thursday night in the Master degree, and that the latch string would be out to its utmost limit to all Newark Masons who would come as visitors.

Accordingly arrangements were made to have the car on the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction railroad that leaves Newark regularly at 6 o'clock wait until 6:45, in order to accommodate the Newark Masons who would be engaged in business and labor until 6 o'clock.

Some minutes before the time set for leaving the large car, which seats 75 people comfortably, was filled to its utmost capacity with a merry crowd of visiting Masons, together with a number of other regular passengers, al bound for Hebron.

By actual count of Mr. J. L. Worth there were 72 Masons present, of whom the following is a complete list:

A. J. Crilly, Dr. Stone, M. Long, F. L. Woodbridge, Rev. C. W. Wallace, E. H. Franklin, A. F. Crayton, D. L. J. H. Reed, J. W. Hersey, J. L. Worth, J. Childress, William Holler, A. Rosebrough, George H. Franklin, E. W. Collins, D. E. Krepps, C. M. Thompson, J. A. Wintermute, Thomas M. Jones, L. Bradley, O. U. Stevens, F. Elliott, A. R. Pitzer, W. G. Larimore, B. B. Jones, W. G. Harrison, C. L. Gabkee, T. H. Quorey, G. M. Jones, H. Beckman, George Markley, T. D. Keys, C. W. Kellenberger, Adam Boner, A. R. Givan, George P. Webb, F. A. Place, D. M. Keller, H. D. Carpenter, L. B. Munch, W. L. Showman, Dr. G. H. Wood, P. B. Smythe, George Franklin Jr., H. Henthorn, H. Siegle, J. R. Ashbrook, J. E. Brownfield, F. M. Windle, C. W. Tritipo, W. O. Edwards, D. L. Murphy, John McDonald, W. H. Chilcote, Dr. E. S. Brown, M. C. Bostwick, N. Stasel, J. M. Thurston, W. H. Anderson, W. F. Holton, N. S. Brown, E. M. P. Brister, B. L. Hawke, E. C. Morford, W. A. Ashley, W. F. Smith, F. Knauber, J. A. Flory, C. L. Flory, O. M. Tucker, H. C. Cochran.

After stopping several times between the starting point at the Auditorium and the city limits, the car arrived safely at Hebron with no untoward accident occurring, except the car stopped about half way to pull a waiting passenger out of a snow drift, who, after the snow had been brushed off of him, proved to be Mr. Henry Cochran.

The trip was made in 25 minutes from the city to Hebron, which, considering the several stops made, was extraordinary time, and every one was praising the Buckeye road.

The visiting Masons immediately repaired to the Masonic hall, which was comfortably filled by the local Masons and their visiting friends from various points.

The work was immediately commenced and two candidates were raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason.

The work of initiation was excellent, and was performed by Worshipful Master William H. Smith, of the Hebron lodge, with the other officers of the lodge, assisted by visiting brethren.

While high commendation was bestowed upon all the work, yet it was the universal expression of all present that they had never seen better work don by a Master of a lodge than was done on Tuesday night by the Master of Hebron lodge.

At the conclusion of the work the Master announced that speech making would be in order for a short time until lunch was ready. He first called upon District Lecturer A. F. Crayton who made a neat speech, commending the lodge on its excellent condition and work. Judge E. M. P. Brister was next called on and made an appropriate response, followed by Past Master A. J. Crilly of Hebron lodge, Past Master George P. Webb and Charles Flory who all made happy and appropriate remarks.

Calls were then made for Brothers Phil B. Smythe and J. A. Flory, but lunch was announced at this point and the speaking was discontinued.

The splendid lunch that was then served by the brethren of Hebron lodge in a bounteous manner, was ample testimony of their big hearted hospitality and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present.

Hebron lodge, No. 116 is the third oldest Masonic lodge in Licking county, being instituted in 1811, upon a special dispensation issued to Werter R. Davis, Samuel P. Fiddler and Wm. W. Gault. The lodge now has a strong and growing membership, owns its own lodge room and building, with handsome and appropriate fittings, has a snug sum of money in the treasury and is one of the most prosperous lodges of the county.

It was midnight when the car started on its return trip to Newark, all feeling that they had enjoyed a most delightful evening, and that it was now up to Newark to return Hebron's hospitality.

A Disreputable and Dangerous Traffic.

In all intelligent communities the danger from the alum baking powder is fully recognized and appreciated. No housewife who is informed upon physiological subjects will knowingly permit one of these dangerous articles to come in contact with her food.

The harmfulness of alum powders is mostly exerted among those who do not read, who are deceived by the stories of peddlers and others interested in the sale of the inferior articles, and these are the people who can least afford to use unhealthful food.

The health authorities however, are waking up to the seriousness of the situation. Already many arrests have been made of the venders of alum baking powders. When by convictions and heavy penalties the sale of these powders is made both disreputable and expensive, it will be a blessing to the public.

Mrs. Fayette Stadden, Wife of the Valley Postmaster Died Tuesday Afternoon—Personals.

Croton, O., Feb. 19.—Mrs. F. Stadden, wife of Mr. Fayette Stadden, the Hartford village postmaster, died on Tuesday afternoon at 3:20 o'clock, after a lingering illness, aged 52 years. Besides her husband, she leaves four daughters. Mrs. Stadden's maiden name was Hatch, and she has numerous friends throughout the county who will deeply mourn her death. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral. Mrs. Stadden was a sister-in-law of Mr. George Stadden, of Newark.

J. I. Wright and wife of Norman visited W. P. Wright and family Friday and Saturday.

The Misses Mount and Hannahs of Alexandria were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wright Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Young of Newark was the guest of his brother Clarence over Sunday.

Supt. C. R. Patterson who has been very ill the past three weeks is some better at this writing.

Mrs. George Ogilvie and son John went to Granville Thursday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Will Clemmens.

Mrs. R. F. Pumphrey is in Bryan, being called there on account of the death of her father.

J. A. Rice and wife of Appleton, were visiting friends here Sunday.

Wm. Bullock who has been in Pike county, looking after the timber business, returned the latter part of the week to remain over Sunday.

Mr. Joseph Coleman's condition remains about the same.

Wm. Thrall who has been very sick with erysipelas in his face and head, is slightly improved at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McCracken are taking care of the postoffice during Postmaster Stadden's absence, caused by the death of his wife.

BILL PASSED BY SENATE OF OHIO

PROVISIONS OF THE PROPOSED GAME LAW.

PREVIOUS QUESTION CALLED

Before Many Amendments Were Offered—Harding's Bill Governing Military Encampments.

Columbus, O., Feb. 19.—The Archer game bill, in practically the same form in which it left the committee on fish culture and game, was passed by the senate Tuesday. Two or three minor amendments were adopted, two or three were rejected. The friends of the measure were in the majority, they knew it, and therefore carried things with a high hand. Some serious criticisms of the manner in which the bill was passed were heard. The bill is clear in its provisions.

The only amendments made by the senate grant full protection to the dove, authorize the killing of no owls save the great horned owl and allow land owners or tenants to kill squirrel or rabbits found on their premises at any time. An amendment offered by Mr. Godfrey, shortening the open seasons to correspond with those for which the present law makes provision, was voted down and a call for the previous question precluded the offering of other amendments which had been prepared.

The discussion of the bill was opened early at the mornnig session and would not have been ended at nightfall, had it not been for the action of the friends of the measure in shutting off further debate after a half hour's argument in the afternoon

After Mr. Archer had briefly explained the provisions of the bill, Mr Watts acting in the interest of the farmers, offered an amendment to eliminate the provision giving protection to rabbits in certain seasons. After a long discussion the motion was lost and an amendment of different form but similar purport, offered by Mr. Stillwell, was adopted. As the bill now stands, it provides for an open season on rabbits, but authorizes farmers to kill them upon their own lands at any time.

Mr. Burnham's amendment to protect the dove was adopted without opposition. Mr. Godfrey's amendment providing for a shortening of the open seasons was vigorously defended and as vigorously attacked. Finally Mr. Royer called attention to the ridiculous contradictions of the present game laws and pointed out the danger of destroying the value of the administration bill by loading it with amendments. He urged the bill's passage and the debate was closed by a vote of 18 to 14. Mr. Godfrey's amendment was lost by a vote of 20 to 12 and the vote on the bill itself stood 22 to 11. Those who voted in the negative were: Messrs. Crites, Decker, Godfrey, Harris, Overturf, Riggin, Stillwell, Thompson, Watts, Wilhelm and Yates.

A brief summary of the most important provisions of the bill as passed by the Senate is given herewith. Doves, kildeer, swallows, bluebirds, meadow larks, gulls and buzzards and the nests and young of all song and insectivorous birds are included among those which are fully protected at all seasons.

The open seasons for game are as follows: Quail and wild turkey, Nov. 10-Dec. 15; woodcock or squirrel, Sept. 1-Dec. 15; rabbits (by gun), Nov. 10-Dec. 15; rail, plover or snipe, Sept. 1-Dec. 15, and March 15-May 1; ducks, geese, swans, coots or mud hens, Sept. 1-Dec. 15 and March 15-May 1. It will be noticed that provision is made for two seasons for duck shooting.

The amount of game which one hunter may bag in one day is limited as follows: Quail, woodcock, geese, plover or snipe, 18, duck, 25; squirrel, 16; pheasant, prairie chicken or grouse, 6. Prairie chicken, ruffled grouse, Mongolian pheasants and English pheasants are protected until Nov. 10, 1904.

The bill makes it unlawful to buy sell, expose for sale, offer for sale or have in one's possession any game birds or animals except rabbits during the closed seasons or to kill them for sale or shipment.

No person must hunt upon another's property without written permission of the owner, agent or tenant thereof under penalty of fine. Wardens are given the right to inspect any receptacle containing game believed to have been killed in violation of law.

No set lines of any sort must be used in catching fish. Bluegills and common sunfish are protected from May 15 to July 1. There must be no fishing through the ice in the waters of the state, and black bass caught in the state's waters must not be offered for sale.

After May 1, 1902, no person must hunt on another's property without a hunter's license, issued by the clerk of the courts. The fees for residents of Ohio is $1, and for non-residents, $25. The money realized from this source is to be turned into the State treasury, to be used in paying the salaries and expenses of district wardens.

Among the other senate bills passed by the senate yesterday are.

By Mr. Harding—To extend the time of National Guard encampments and otherwise to promote the efficiency of the state military.

The judiciary committee reported favorably Mr. Royer's resolution, providing for a constitutional amendment doing away with the double liability of holders of stock in Ohio corporations.

KEPT HIS VOW

To Pay His Father's Debt Before He Would Marry the Girl He Loved.

New York, Feb. 19.—Having kept his vow that he never would marry until he had paid all of his father's debts Henry Warren of Morristown, N. J., is to wed Miss Marie Thompson, of Bambridge, Ireland, who has waited 20 years for him. Mr Warren left for the old country yesterday and when he returns a month hence he will bring his bride with him.

Warren was a student in Trinity College, Dublin, 20 years ago. His father was cashier of one of the leading banks there, and the family was wealthy. Warren met Miss Thompson who was attending a seminary in that city They fell in love and were betrothed They were to be married on leaving school.

But one day the bank failed, and when the flurry was over the elder Warren was without a penny and was heavily in debt.

Young Warren vowed he would never marry until he had cleared his father's debts, who died shortly after the failure Young Warren came to America, and has been connected with a large teahouse. During all these years he has kept up correspondence with his early love, and during the last six years has made an annual visit to Ireland to see her.

WOOSTER'S FATE

Still in the Hands of Men With Money To Give—Still Thousands to Be Raised.

Wooster, O., Feb. 19—This will be an important week in the history of this city, for it will probably determine the fate of Wooster University. On the morning of December 11 last the entire main building of the university was destroyed by fire. On the loss of $250,000 there was but $60,000 insurance. At a meeting of the faculty and citizens it was determined to make an effort to rebuild. It was figured that $200,000 would be necessary. It was determined that $100,000 should be secured outside of the city and county, and $40,000 in the city and county.

The citizens and friends, trustees, faculty and students went to work. A gentleman of wealth who resides in an Eastern city, offered to give $100,000 additional if by 5 o'clock on the afternoon of February 20 the $100,000 and $40,000 had been subscribed. During the last few days the friends of the institution have been coming forward and it now looks as if the money would be raised. The citizens now lack a little less than $1,000 of their $40,000 and there is but $17,000 of the $100,000 unpledged.

It was his intention to use the money to defray the expenses of a honeymoon, for Sunday he was passing through Hancock en route to Morgan County, West Virginia, two miles distant, to wed Anna, daughter of Peter Hovermale, when arrested and lodged in jail The guests and clergyman had assembled for the wedding, and when the cause of the groom's nonarrival was ascertained the bride fell in a faint

A NEW CHURCH

Jewels and Furs, Necklaces and Wedding Rings are Given by the People.

Akron, O., Feb. 19—Roused to a fervor of religious excitement never before equaled in this city the people of South Akron have been throwing jewelry and clothing into the collection baskets at the revival meetings in progress at the East South Street Mission an undenominational church, founded some time ago by Rev. C. A. McKinney. Rev. McKinney has been conducting the meetings assisted by Evangelist Wm. Cox, of Titusville, Penn., and every night the mission church has been jammed to the doors.

The church stands in a community of toilers, and they seemed to be stirred to the depths by the nightly swaying of the evangelist.

The collection baskets are passed nightly, and, while much money is contributed for the extension of missions greater sums are contributed in other valuables.

The excitement reached its highest pitch at the close of a long and wildly delirious service when collections were twice taken. Women threw off rings, wedding rings, earings and boas and other furs and piled them upon the altar. Men threw their watches into the baskets and emptied their pockets of all their money as well. One man whose pay envelope for two weeks' work had not been opened, gave it all about $18. Rev. McKinney says that a Cincinnati house will take all the articles contributed and allow the best possible value in money. He has been in Akron two years, and plans to build a large church in South Akron.

Inclement weather begins when autumn ends. The great objection to our climate is that it alternates between the heat of the tropics and the rigors of the Arctic.

Gentlemen—For years past when I have been exposed to wet or inclement weather, my chest would hurt me and I would have serious indigestion, and I would be laid up for a day or two, causing inconvenience and pain.

One of my lodge friends advised me to try Peruna, as it had helped him, and I found that a bottle cured me.

If I feel badly now I at once take two or three doses, and I find it keeps me in fine health. Peruna is worthy of every one's confidence.—WM. UBELAKER.

It is only just ordinary good, common sense to provide against inclement weather. If you have the slightest cold, cough, sneezing, or any other indication that you are "under the weather," a few doses of Peruna will put you right.

Congressman Horace G. Snover, of Port Austin, Mich., writes from House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I have found Peruna a very efficient and speedy remedy for a persistent and annoying cough resulting from catarrhal trouble."—Horace G. Snover.

Mrs. Lavina E. Walker, who holds the highest state office of the Ladies of the Illinois G. A. R., which is Department Chaplain, writes the following letter:

WESTERN SPRINGS, ILL.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen:—"You have my sincere gratitude for placing before suffering women a medicine which has proven such a blessing as Peruna has.

"I have used it myself when much worn out, and found most gratifying results, and a number of the women of our Order suffering with weakness peculiar to women, have been wonderfully helped and cured by Peruna."—Lavina E. Walker.

Resulted in a Damaged Milk Wagon, But Mr. David G. Woolard Escaped Injury.

Mr. David G. Woolard the well known dairyman residing a short distance south of the city, met with a bad accident this morning. He was coming down Cedar street when his horses which he had not driven before frightened at something alongside of the road, and ran away.

The milk wagon was oerturned in the road, with Mr. Woolard inside of it, but fortunately he escaped injury, although he lost all his milk, and his customers were compelled to go without being served this morning.

The wagon was badly torn up and broken although Mr. Woolard says he will be able to go over his route tomorrow morning.

IN A BURNING SHAFT ONE HUNDRED MEN ESCAPE

Through a Gallery, Discovered When Almost all Hope Had Been Abandoned.

Seattle, Wash., February 19.—The great Treadwell mines at Douglass island were assailed by fire on Tuesday, February 11, and large loss of life was prevented by the almost superhuman efforts of everybody who could reach the scene to stay the progress of the flames. The steamer Dirigo, reaching port this morning, brought particulars of the fire.

The Alaskan-American compressor building was entirely destroyed. Thirty-eight thousand dollars worth of stamps and mill plates and the 120 stamp mill, with the entire engine room, were saved More than 100 miners were in the lower workings and in imminent danger of death.

Before warning could be sent to the men down in the mines the shafthouse was on fire and the lower end of the 120 stamp mill was burning fiercely. The firemen confined their efforts to the mill adjacent to the compressor building, and though their clothing frequently caught fire and their hands and faces were badly burned they finally got the fire under control, after several buildings had been destroyed In the meatime the flames in the shaft had been burning rapidly, and Swans Berquist, one of the men working on the 300 foot level, was the first to gain knowledge of the fire above. He shouted a warning to the miners on the 400 foot level. After some delay an old gallery communicating between the new and the old workings was discovered, and after a hard struggle in the smoky, gas-laden levels the men reached the bottom of the pit in safety.

In the meantime, with the help of additional fire apparatus from Douglass, the fire had been confined to the compressor building snaft, shafthouse and a nearby mill building. These were destroyed. When the Dirigo left for the south she was not certain that all the men in the mines had cespaed but the mine officials believe they did.

SPECULATION

The Cause of Alleged Shortage in the Accounts of Bellevue, Ohio, Postmaster.

Bellevue, O, February 19—Postmaster Hamilton Schuyler of this city has left home . and, it as alleged, is short several thousand dollars in his accounts. He drew $900 of postoffice funds from the First National Bank in this city Saturday afternoon and left town Sunday night, but the news that he had left did not come out until Tuesday afternoon when Postoffice Inspector Moore, of the Cincinnati District, arrived here and began an investigation.

The inspector and T H. Mullanu, one of his bondsmen. are now in charge of the office. It develops that a little more than a month ago the Postmaster went to H. C. Stahl, one of his bondsmen. and confessed to being short $1000. This aroused Mr Stahl, who made good upon Schuyler's promise to refrain from speculation. Bucket shop speculation in Toledo is said to be the cause of his downfall.

War on Ragtime Music.

Chicago musicians of the higher class—those who have engagements with the Thomas orchestra, theater orchestras and concert companies—are discussing a plan of forming a new organization and seceding from the Chicago Federation of Musicians, says the Chicago Journal. The reason is the feeling that inferior musicians who play for dances and for money rather than art's sake make up the body of the federation The others want some distinction between the men who play ragtime and think it is music and those who are called upon to interpret the difficult compositions of Wagner. Verdi, Mascagni and Gounod. There are 2,000 union musicians in Chicago. and of these 400 or 500 are said to be in sympathy with the movement.

UNLUCKY THIRTEEN.

In Combination With the Marrying Habit Brings Moore's Promising Career To a Full Stop—A Story Somewhat Out of the Usual Line.

The unlucky thirteen, in combination with the marrying habit, has brought the promising career of Howard Moore to a full stop.

At 28 the unblushing husband of thirteen wives, none of whom has seen fit to depart this life since the matrimonial knot was tied, he is now languishing in jail with the probability of a twenty years' sojourn in the penitentiary at Covington, Ky., as a mild antidote for his fatal weakness.

It was on December 13 last that Moore met his Waterloo. She was a plump and pleasing brunette, 21 years of age and named Fannie Robinson. He fell in love at sight and the marriage was immediate. After a married life of fifteen days Moore took umbrage at the fact that his wife desired to visit her father, who was ill. He promptly deserted her Mrs. Moore refused to look at things in the same light. She swore out a warrant for his arrest, and his incarceration developed a crop of wives and incidental children that would have set up in business the most ambitious follower of Brigham Young.

The universal fascinator who has accomplished so much in so brief a space of experience is the most singularly hard featured mountaineer to be found for miles around. Broad-nosed and wide mouthed, he has a complexion like badly tanned leather, a shock of black hair, and a pair of sloe-back eyes. A pair of bushy, irregular eyebrows lend a somewhat sinister look to his face, and a heavy slouching gait completes the unattractive whole.

Moore cherishes no delusions anent his beauty; he explains the whole matter by the power of his eye

"It's the way you look at a gal," is the simple theory put forward by this heart breaker, whose record is thus far unexampled. Here is his statement:

"I believe in men marrying as many times as they want to. Pap said that the Bible said to multiply and replenish the earth. It is as easy to win a woman's heart as fallin' off a log. I don't believe in long courtships I believe that when a feller gits stuck on a gal he ort to ask her to marry him right then and never put it off—nary day.

"It all depends on how you look at a gal; the eyes tell the tale. Every gal jedges a man by his eyes, and I jedge a gal by her eyes. The eyes talk to each other in their own way.

"It don't matter how ugly a man may be, nor how ragged he may be, nor who he is; if he knows how to look the gal in the eyes he will win her heart and she will marry him or die Every gal I ever axed to marry me said yes. But if I hadn't axed 'em all at the time our eyes looked into each other several uv them would have said no. I allus got tared of 'em in a little while after I married 'em and allus found a good excuse to git away from 'em.

"I loved all of 'em when I married 'em, but, as I sed a while ago, I soon got tared uv 'em but then I would allus soon want me another wife.

"I don't like single life all the time nur married life all the time. I allus like to try both I intend to marry agin when I git out uv this scrape, and, if I can git to look into all their eyes at my trial they will tell the Jedge to turn me loose.

"Say, mister, gimme a chaw of home spun terbacker What ye writin' thar I don't want my name in the paper, but if you see enny girl that wants to marry send her ter me"

It was at the tender age of 15 that the matrimonial microbe firt appeared in Moore's system Rachel Dunn, aged 14, a playmate of his from babyhood was his earliest victim in wives. The wedding had the consent of the parents and lasted two weeks. A cold breakfast one morning chilled the ardor of the youthful husband and he decamped. A child the result of this union, is one of today's exhibits. That was in 1888. Victoria Meade, 17, Virginia Peters, 16 Evaline Adams, 19; and Alice Burnet 14, all succumbed to the eye within two years. The second he met at his mother's funeral But Moore got "tared" in a week or two, and save for the child which was the human document in each case, the marriage was as if it had never been.

In May, 1891 he wedded Susan Stoulton and added one more child to his miscellaneous family Six months later Nancy Pucket, a beauty of 18, became his bride. Joy lasted for nine days and Moore fled As usual offspring attested the fact, twins being now included in his increasing responsibilities.

He married Priscilla Williams in 1892 to save her from picking blackberries for a living, and yet another child resulted. In 1893 he was the husband of Charlotte Evans, and just at this time his frequent absences in jail for the gentle art of "moonshining" made necessary lapses in his marriage record. Minerva Brachears, who became his wife in 1894, was 25 years and muscular, and chastised him for getting drunk. She and Phoebe Gaybart, the next incumbent, each contributed a child to the Moore clan.

A widow, Mrs Jane Tolson, was his next choice. She was 35 and fascinating enough to hold him for five weeks, but when she insisted that she loved him better than her first husband the mountaineer distrusted her and left. A child was born to the deserted bride. For a lengthy interval the much married Moore remained in single blessedness Then he gazed into Fannie Robinson's dark eyes and was lost.

Married on the 13th day of the month to his thirteenth wife, this father of thirteen children, who was himself of a family of thirteen and had been thirteen times arrested for "moonshining," touched the crisis of his fate.

And now thirteen editions of the "woman scorned are ready to ask the jury what it is going to do about it

NEW NAME FOR POOR LO.

He Is Now Known as an "Amerind" to the Ethnologist.

The bureau of ethnology has invented a new name for the North American aborigines, says the Washington Post. When Columbus and his contemporaries first landed on the western continent, they supposed they had reached the eastern shores of India for the simple reason that, with their limited knowledge of geography, they could not imagine such a thing as an intervening continent lying within the vast expanse that separated western Europe from eastern Asia. Nor was this notion dispelled until long after the expedition of Magellan. Such being the view entertained by the early explorers, it was only natural that they should name the inhabitants of the new found land "Indians."

Now, in modern times this term for the aborigines of North and South America has caused endless confusion, especially among anthropologists and ethnologists. The Indian proper is the native of India and not of the two Americas, and it is by no means seldom that a person meeting with the term in books or hearing it spoken is at a loss to know whether it applies to the people of India or of the two Americas.

Having experienced the effects of this misleading term, the bureau of American ethnology during the past year or two adopted the term "Amerind" in the place of "Indian" in describing the red race. This term has many advantages and is made up from the two first syllables of the word American and the first three letters of the word Indian, so that even to those who have never encountered the term its suggestiveness and application are at once apparent, and one can almost tell at first glance what it is intended to signify. The word "Amerind" has met with general approval among anthropologists all over the world, who have discarded the term "Indian" in its favor.

TO OPEN NEW COUNTRY.

Resources of a California County Described by Lord Thurlow.

Lord Thurlow of England is at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York. He has been spending the last year in California in the interest of English investors, investigating the best railroad route from Eureka to Reading and thence on to join the Northern Pacific This road, he announces, will soon be built. The capital will be furnished half by English and half by American investors, roughly speaking. "Naturally," he said the other day to a reporter of the New York Tribune, "we seek to combine the shortest route consistent with the easiest grades and the least expensive engineering works with opening up of the richest valleys and finest timber and mineral belts. Several routes were proposed and, as there are practically no inhabitants on any of them, we had a free hand One route has almost been selected It is impossible to disclose it at present, for several syndicates, banks and individuals are anxiously watching to buy lands and locate and patent mineral rights along the line, as the land will at once go up five times in value.

The rush into Oklahoma will be but a joke compared to it. Electricity was debated as a motive power, for it can negotiate steeper grades and hence make the road shorter by half, but a standard gauge steam road was decided on and will be constructed forthwith. The country is rich in minerals, in spite of what is thought in the east, and even on the seabeach gold may be found. Soil and climate are equally good. The timber you may cut will pay twice over the original cost of the land, and you may then sell at an enormous profit. With salmon, deer, rich soil, redwood timber and a wonderful climate, Humboldt county is a paradise waiting its Adam and Eve."

MONKEYS TO PICK COTTON

Chicagoan Proposes to Utilize Imitative Faculty of Tropical Beasts.

Peter Kuntz, a native of Chicago, who says he is a cousin of "Oom" Paul Kruger, arrived at Pine Bluff, Ark., the other day accompanied by a party of capitalists and lumbermen.

Mr. Kuntz says he is touring the state of Arkansas in search of a spot where he proposes to launch a scheme which, if successful, will revolutionize the cotton picking industry of the south. He and his companions are traveling on a special train composed of three vestibule sleepers.

Kuntz proposes, according to a Memphis (Tenn.) dispatch to the Philadelphia Press, to colonize a large number of monkeys from Africa and South America, which, he says, make excellent cotton pickers. He is looking for a large tract of land, which will be bought in and a stock company formed from the number of capitalists now with him. He then proposes to embark for Africa and bring back two shiploads of monkeys.

Follows President's Example.

President Roosevelt returns from his cross country rambles with an appetite which has not escaped notice by those who are close to him. Hoping for similar good results, Wu Ting Fang, the now celebrated Chinese diplomat, lately resolved to try the exercise and, in company with servants, accordingly set forth for a long walk On the way back the party encountered the president, who was agreeably impressed by the manner in which his healthful example was being followed by the ingenuous Chinaman

"My walk has benefited me vastly to day," said Mr. Roosevelt, "I am quite ready for a brace of quails on toast."

"So am I," smiled Wu "Only I shall prefer my brace to be turkeys."—New York Times.

FRIED ONIONS

Directly Caused the Death of the World's Greatest General.

It is a matter-of-history that Napoleon was a gormand, an inordinate lover of good things of the table, and history further records that his favorite dish was fried onions; his death from cancer of stomach it is claimed also, was probably caused from excessive indulgence of this fondness for the odorous vegetable.

The onion is undoubtedly a wholesome article of food, in fact has many medical qualities of value, but it would be difficult to find a more indigestible article than fried onions, and to many people they are simply poison, but the onion does not stand alone in this respect. Any article of food that is not thoroughly digested becomes a source of disease and discomfort whether it be fried onions or beef steak.

The reason why any wholesome food is not promptly digested is because the stomach lacks some important element of digestion, some stomachs lack peptone, others are deficient in gastric juice, still others lack hydrochloric acid.

The one thing necessary to do in any case of poor digestion is to supply those elements of digestion which the stomach lacks, and nothing does this so thoroughly and safely as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dr. Richardson in writing a thesis on treatment of dyspepsia and indigestion, closes his remarks by saying, "for those suffering from acid dyspepsia, shown by sour, watery risings, or for flatulent dyspepsia shown by gas on stomach, causing heart trouble and difficult breathing, as well as for all other forms of stomach trouble, the safest treatment is to take one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. I advise them because they contain no harmful drugs, but are composed of valuable digestives, which act promptly upon the food eaten. I never knew a case of indigestion or even chronic dyspepsia which Stuart's Tablets would not reach."

Cheap cathartic medicines claiming to cure dyspepsia and indigestion can have no effect whatever in actively digesting the food, and to call any cathartic medicine a cure for indigestion is a misnomer.

Every druggist in the United States and Canada sells Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and they are not only the safest and most successful but the most scientific of any treatment for indigestion and stomach troubles. Feb. 12-14-19-21

ON THE ICE

With Bare Feet a Demented Woman Crossed the River—Shock May Prove Fatal.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 19.—A young woman of weak intellect named Burnside, who lives near Point Pleasant, yesterday left her home and crossed the Ohio River, walking over the ice in her bare feet.

After reaching the Ohio side she proceeded through the snow for a distance of half a mile before being overtaken by the members of her family. The unfortunate woman's feet and limbs were so badly frozen that it was found necessary to amputate both of her lower limbs in order to save her life. She will probably not survive the shock.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Clarksville, Tenn., Feb. 19.—This morning a negro cabin here occupied by Jane Daniel, colored, was destroyed by fire. The woman, who was 80 years old and lived alone, was burned to death.

ACCIDENT HAPPENED TO MR. A. L. SIMMONS.

65TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Simmons Last Fall, But Wife Died in October.

Kirkersville, O., Feb. 19.—Mr. A. L. Simmons of this place, met with a peculiar accident about 4 o'clock on Tuesday evening, which will probably result fatally.

Mr. Simmons who is 86 years old, and one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of the village, went from the house to the chicken coop, and in some manner fell over a box, which was in the place, and was later found there in an unconscious condition.

He was taken into the house, and medical aid was summoned. The physician says that Mr. Simmons suffered severe injuries to the spine which will result fatally.

The injured man is still unconscious today and all hope has been given up.

Mr. Simmons' wife died last October and five children are living, Thomas C. and H. H. of Kirkersville, Mrs. Hosmer of Toledo, Mrs. Beach of Bowling Green, and Mary at home.

Not long ago Mr. and Mrs. Simmons celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary, but shortly after that the wife was called to the better world.

The electric car on the Buckeye Lake road, struck a horse here this morning, driven by a man named Sellers, but little damage was done.

Condition of John Davis, Who Was Badly Hurt is Improved—Mr. Hutson is Better.

Hebron, O., Feb. 19.—Everybody will be glad to learn of the improvement in the condition of John Davis, who was so unfortunate last week as to fall off a load of fodder on his head and having a piece of cornstalk about two inches long penetrate his cheek, just below the eyeball. His sufferings were very severe for several days and grave fears were entertained that he would lose his eye, but owing to the treatment of Dr. G. N. Brown his eye was saved, and he is getting along nicely.

Mr. Hutson foreman of the trolley gang on the electric railroad who fell from the top of a pole near Etna, and was so seriously injured is now able to be brought here. Rev. T. N. Madden will take the best care of him until he is fully recovered. He has boarded with Mr. Madden for six months and while there won many friends who are hoping for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. L. W. Bounds is lying seriously ill at her home near Buckeye Lake. Dr. Hatch of Newark is the attending physician.

Mrs. J. C. Neel was called to Thornville last week owing to the serious condition of her brother, Mr. Whitmer.

The sad news of the death of Mrs. Jehiel Tedrick was received here with much sorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Burch spent several days of last week in Newark, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Burch.

S. C. Gilbert and daughter Fannie visited friends at Pataskala Friday.

Mrs. T. M. White and Mrs. D. M. Geiger and daughter Mary are visiting friends at Marion.

Quite a number of the members of F. & A. M. lodges of Newark were here Tuesday evening.

Miss Daisy Geiger entertained a number of young people on Thursday evening at their pleasant home, north of town. Among them were the Misses Lela Sawyer, Mary Rosebrough, Florence Grove, Clara, Mary, Blanche and Florence Madden, and Messrs Lewis, Smith, Prior, Justice and Madden.

Mr. Moran of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is superintending the construction of the smoke stack at the power house has a gang of men at work. There is some talk of running an extra car to and from Newark to accommodate those who get board and lodging there. A good boarding house is needed here badly, as board cannot be got here for love or money.

The protracted meetings now in progress at the M. E. church are drawing large crowds of deeply interested hearers and much good is being done, the pastor Rev. Rogers being an able speaker and doing a grand work for the uplifting of mankind.

TELL OF CONSPIRACY TO MURDER RICE

LAWYER PATRICK'S FACE WAS HOT AND RED

AS THE EVIDENCE WAS GIVEN

Forming the Keystone to the Prosecution's Arch of Testimony—Progress of Celebrated Trial.

New York, Feb. 19.—Albert T. Patrick, the lawyer on trial for the murder of Millionaire Wm M. Rice leaned his head on his hands and looked into the eyes of his accuser when Charles F. Jones, former valet to Rice, this morning resumed his story of the alleged conspiracy with the lawyer to murder the old man and gain his millions by means of a forged will and checks. Patrick's face was hot and red. The young man on the witness stand uttered words that form the keystone of the prosecution's arch of testimony. The valet's face was red too, and he hung his head as he confessed that the lawyer had successfully tempted him by offers of great wealth and that he had been the instrument of his kind old employer's murder. In his preliminary testimony last evening he had told how Rice had taken him into his employ and trusted him with all his personal affairs. He was a good employer.

How Patrick had called upon him and induced him to consent to take a bribe for writing a bogus letter with his employer's name forged to it, which would aid Patrick in some litigation he was conducting against Rice.

This was the way Patrick had gained Jones' confidence, the valet confessed, and led to the theatrical murder of the old man.

The court room this morning was crowded by a morbid crowd. Many women, dressed in light colors sat and listened open mouthed to the dramatic recital of Jones.

Prosecutor Osborne, perched upon the corner of a table attempted to question the witness this morning anent an affidavit purporting to have been signed by Rice, in which he swore off his personal taxes in New York, because he was a resident of Texas. This document had been shown to Jones by Patrick. The defense here indicated clearly that it would fight, by strenuous objections the prosecution's attempt to build its damaging structure, and a long legal wrangle followed.

New York, Feb. 19.—After several days of examination and cross-examination of experts, new interest in the trial of Albert T. Patrick, accused of the murder of William Marsh Rice was aroused when Charles F. Jones Mr. Rice's valet, who has been charged with being the tool of Lawyer Patrick in compassing the death of the millionaire, was put upon the stand by the state.

Jones said he was employed by Rice in Houston, Texas, and came with him to New York in May, 1897. He did Rice's clerical work and wrote his checks. Patrick, he said, called at Rice's apartment in October, 1899, to see Rice, and said his name was Smith. Rice was in bed and the defendant said he would call again. This he did about a week later.

"It was about 8 o'clock in the evening," said Jones. "I saw him in the parlor. Mr. Rice was in the back room. He spoke of Texas news. Either at that visit or at one he paid a week later, Patrick talked about the trial of the claim against Mr. Rice under the will of Mrs. Rice. He seemed much interested and asked if the case had been settled. He said the evidence was very strong in favor of Mr. Holt.

On his second visit I think he told me he was Holt's lawyer. He told me the terms of a settlement had been arranged, and said if I would write it out on the typewriter he would get it signed. He gave me a sheet of paper with the writing in pencil that he wanted copied."

"Did Mr. Rice see Patrick?" asked Mr. Osborne, for the state.

"He opened the door while Patrick was talking to me. I don't think he recognized him. Patrick said he thought it would be a good thing to have some old friend write a letter to Mr. Rice suggesting a compromise. He spoke of Colonel Whittlesey, but I told him Judge Hill was the only man who had any influence with Mr. Rice. Patrick said he was sure he could effect a compromise if he could get an interview with Mr. Rice. But I told him Mr. Rice would not see him if he wanted to talk about the suit."

Led by Mr. Osborne, Jones described the letter Patrick wanted him to write. The letter was to state that Mr. Rice had lost confidence in his Texas lawyer, but that he loved Texas and wanted to return there and wanted the litigation settled. In reply to Mr. Osborne's question Jones said:

"Patrick was to give me $250 for it but he would not give me the money unless I would go on the witness stand and swear that Rice signed it. I refused to give him the letter. Patrick told me Mr. Holt had given him $500 and had promised him $10,000 when a settlement of the litigation was effected."

"Why did you not agree to earn that $250?"

"I was afraid to swear falsely."

STORY ABOUT DUFFERIN.

How the Famous British Diplomat Renewed an Old Acquaintance.

When governor general of Canada, the late Lord Dufferin visited Washington and was banqueted at the White House by the president of the United States, says the Belfast Northern Whig. During the evening one of the president's guests, accosting the governor general, asked to be permitted the honor of renewing an old acquaintance. "With pleasure," said Lord Dufferin, whose memory for faces was excellent, trying hard to locate the personality of the "old acquaintance," but without success. "I don't wonder your excellency has forgotten me," said the American, interpreting rightly his lordship's inquiring gaze. "It is so very long ago since we met." "How long?" inquired Lord Dufferin. "Some thirty-five years," coolly replied the stranger. "Thirty-five years!" exclaimed the governor general in surprise. "Why, I was a little boy then." "I was a little boy myself," said the American, "but perhaps a brief story will help you to remember me." "I shall be delighted to hear it," returned courtly Lord Dufferin.

"Thirty-five years ago," proceeded the stranger, "the youthful heir to a north of Ireland estate while walking in his father's demesne met a country lad of about his own age and told him quite mildly, but still with the authoritative air of youth, that he was trespassing; that he had no right there. Ignorant of the heir's identity, the country boy replied in the accent of the County Down, 'A hae as guid a recht as y'sel, anyway.' The young autocrat resented the impertinence of the young peasant. The dispute between them grew heated, and at last the argument beloved of all schoolboys of all grades was resorted to. They fought. The peasant proved rather the handier of the pair, and the young nobleman"—"Why, that was myself!" interrupted Lord Dufferin, laughing. "I remember the incident clearly. The boy's name was Young. He was the son of a tenant on my father's estate. I told him he was trespassing. He questioned my right to interfere. At last I challenged him. He responded with cheerful alacrity. We fought, and he gave me a tremendous thrashing. But what is the application of your story? Surely you cannot be that hard fisted County Down lad?" "Governor Young," interposed the president, addressing the American, "I am delighted to find that you and Lord Dufferin are already known to each other." "Yes," said Governor Young; "his excellency and myself were talking over our first merry meeting thirty-five years ago in Clandeboye demesne." And during the remainder of his stay in Canada Lord Dufferin had no more welcome guest at Government House in Ottawa than the governor of Ohio.

THEORY TO PROLONG LIFE.

Illinois Man Claims to Do It by Will Power.

That prolonging human life is possible through the proper employment of one's will power is being put to a practical test by S. V. Keller of Medora, Ill., who, despite his seventy-one years, walks with the elasticity and dash of an athlete, knows no ills and expects to pass the century mark of time.

Mr. Keller is one of the pioneer educators of Macoupin county and is known widely as an advanced thinker and a man of remarkable mentality. He has made a diligent study of the mind and claims many things for it in its power over matter. He now advances the theory that it is in truth the elixir of life, the power that restores youth to age, the secret of longevity. It is within the power of any one, he claims, to exercise this force if there is a sufficient understanding of the principle and an intelligent application thereof. From twenty to thirty years may be added to one's life thereby, he maintains.

To illustrate his own rejuvenation Mr. Keller the other day in the presence of a St. Louis Republic representative flaunted his legs and arms with the nimbleness and perfect ease of a ballet dancer. "See!" he exclaimed, starting off sprightly across a room. "My legs are as free and easy as a child's. I am younger than I was thirty years ago."

CONDUCTOR DELL J. HUFFMAN,

Of the Newark City Electric Road, Was Probably Fatally Hurt in West Newark.

A terrible accident occurred about 1.45 o'clock this afternoon, which wil. probably result fatally to the victim, Dell J. Huffman, a conductor on the city line of the Newark and Granvill electric railroad.

Mr. Huffman was running car No 15, W. C. Runckles motorman, an leaving the fair ground was goin north on Williams street. When he got to the crossing of the P. C. C. & St. L. and B. & O. tracks, with th electric railroad, he went ahead o his car to "flag" for the motorman.

The details as given by Mr Runckles are as follows:

"I had stopped and was waiting fo Dell to give me a signal. He was standing on the track, a west boun freight having just passed, and anoth er was coming west toward the cross ing, about 150 years away. It was hi intention to run the car across be tween these two trains, and signalle me to come ahead fast. I put m hand on the lever, when I saw a east bound passenger coming down a high rate of speed. I reversed th car and yelled to Huffman, who mus have heard me, for he started to ste off the track, when the engine struc him, it seemed to me on the left sid of the head. He was not thrown an considerable distance, probably abou 10 feet. Had I obeyed the signal an started ahead, and not noticed th passenger train, it would have struc the car and probably killed the pass engers in it."

The injured man was picked up an carried into the residence of Austi Johnson, near by, at 125 William street, where he was made as com fortable as possible.

Physicians were called and Drs. J G. Bowers, C. F. Legg and Barker re sponded. A hurry call was sent fo Bowers & Bradley's ambulance, whic an Advocate reporter was at th scene of the accident in 10 minutes af ter it happened.

The physicians made a hasty exam ination and found a number of dee cuts in the scalp, which they at onc stitched up, the patient being put u der the influence of chloroform. Th right hand was terribly mangled, an a portion will have to be amputate The most serious injury however, wa later found to be a fracture of th skull, on the left side, above the ea This injury will probably prove fata

The injured man is aged about 2 years, is married and has two chil dren. He lives with his family at 44 West Main street, to which place h was conveyed in the ambulance afte the physicians had rendered tempor ary services.

The train which struck Huffman i Pan Handle No. 14, known as th "flyer." It does not stop in Newark and at the place where the acciden happened, on a down grade, runs prob ably 60 miles an hour.

Motorman Runckles says that he is positive that the engineer gave no warning whistle, nor did he make any attempt to stop his train.

Huffman was considered a capable and careful employe and his sad acci dent is deeply deplored by the com pany and his fellow workmen.

te of the clever episodes in "A Royal Prisoner," which comes to the Auditorium Feb. 21, is the one in the rst act when the young prisoner, a oldier of fortune, who is confined for lirting with the Count's wife, by ac ident succeeds in getting his jailor runk. His charming manner and reat familiarity amuses the jailor and herefore he partakes too freely of the parkling wine and falls asleep. The oung prisoner thus finds himself in a edicament, but remains loy l to his friend, the jailor, after the scape of the pretender to the throne, hich was effected during the jailor's emporary slumbers. The play will be resented by an excellent company eaded by Mr. True S. James who has een starring in this play in all the rincipal cities for the past three ears.

Auditorium Next Monday.

Undoubtedly one of the most delight- l comedies of American life to be resented to the theatre goers in this ty during the season is Mark Twain's ncomparable effort, "Pudd'n head Wil- n." Many of the residents of this ommunity have enjoyed the pleasing tuations incidental to the play when t was presented in other cities, but he general average of theatre goers ere have never before been given the rivedege of witnessing it. The com- any which has been engaged to pre- ent this comedy is of a high order of erit, in fact so supremely superior to ny other organizatin ever sent out ith the attraction, that a comparison ould be obnoxious. Shipman Broth- s who are directing the tour of the omedy, have spared no expense to ake it a perfect production. The omedy in itself is one of the greatest amatic successes of the present gen- ration. The scenic enects are mar- ellous and it may be looked upon now s the ture dramatic event of the local eason.

Here's an Old Clock.

One of the oldest as well as most ysterious pieces of mechanism ever xhibited in this country is in the pos- ession of Magician Kellar, and will horfly be exhibited in this city. It is a clock, made by one of the famed treet magicians of India and was ent to Kellar as a memento of a riendship that he formed when in ndia studying the art of these inter- sting people. The clock has no wheels, nor movement, no weights, endulum or case, but has simply a lass dial and one battered old brass and, which is stuck into a hole in the centre of the dial. The dial and hand are passed into the audience for ex- amination, and then suspended by a steel hook, from a glass rod. Kellar walks into the audience and asks the clock to tell some gentleman the day of the week upon which he was born; the clock hand moves to 3 or 4 or 7, in- dicating the number of the day in the week, and it never makes an error. In like manner it tells the time by any- one's watch; tells the dates of coins; number and values of bank bills; does sums in arithmetic in much less time than a professor could figure them out in fact, performs all sorts of astonish- ing things. In his entertainment this season Kellar presents a dozen Orient- al illusions, each occupying the entire stage of the theatre, and all presented in full light. He has a new program of experiments in pure sleight-of-hand, all of which will be presented during his engagement at the Auditorium on Feb. 26. Kellar's entertainment in this city will be identical with that given in New York and Boston.

Tragedy in Miniature.

"And then the heart-broken, despairing girl fled from the house-fled down the street—on the suburbs—out into the country lying bathed in the moonlight. She made straight for the precipice, and with a sob in her throat and a prayer on her lips she took the awful plunge." No such scene as this is depicted in the deliciously funny comedy "The Girl from Chili," which comes to town in the near future. The farce was not written as an attempt to elevate the stage, but is merely an effort to drive away the blues," and the management wonder if "the doctor who gets out of patients is apt to lose his temper."

Mrs. Austin's Buckwheat has a world wide reupation on account of its purity and genuine Buckwheat flavor. Don't forget the name. dw

Train Took Its Own Photograph.

A large handsome engraving, 18x28 inches, has been made of "The Burlington's Number One" while going at 60 miles an hour between Chicago and Denver. It is the best picture of a train in motion ever taken, and "the train took the picture itself." This is explained in a folder which will be sent free on application. Price of large engraving 20 cents. Postage stamps will do. Address P. S. Eustis General Passenger Agent, C. B. & Q Ry., 209 Adams Street, Chicago. 14-d2t

When Martha Washington Was Young

BORN FEB. 22, 1732.

BY MINERVA SPENCER HANDY

Copyright, 1902, by Minerva Spencer Handy

WHEN this little daughter, Martha, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dandridge, way down in Virginia, in the year 1730, her eyes looked upon a very different world from that the twentieth century baby gazes at. She no doubt had beautifully hand embroidered gowns and underclothing, for the mothers of that time were very much better needlewomen than we are, but they were all fashioned of linen or dimity, cold and clammy. Even the little undergarments were of the same material, for woolen or flannel held no place in the dressing of infants or children. All the warmth required seemed to be in a tiny embroidered shawl pinned around the shoulders. All gowns were neckless and sleeveless, and when we remember how imperfectly the houses were heated we wonder if Martha was not often dosed with medicine when she cried when all she wanted was to have a few more comfortable clothes. Her mother and father no doubt had plenty of furs and velvets, for they were of the aristocratic class and had all their best clothing direct from England. They, however, thought the little ones either did not feel the cold or else should early learn the lesson of self control and cheerful endurance of what could not be helped. Be that as it may, I am sure Martha and all the other colonial babies must have suffered with the cold. Icy blasts blew down the great chimneys, and the rooms could not be warmed three feet from where the great logs were blazing. The bedrooms were not heated at all, and the only hope that the babies slept warmly at all lies in the long handled warming pan which a black boy or girl nightly thrust between the clammy linen sheets. These, filled with live coals from the kitchen fire, must have proved very grateful to the baby of long ago.

MARTHA SAT FOR HOURS IN STOCKS OR STRAPPED TO BACKBOARDS.

When the babies had laid aside their first clothes, they were dressed exactly like their parents. A costume worn by a little tot two and a half years old is described as follows: "Of yellow brocaded satin over a petticoat of crimson velvet." It touched the floor in front and trailed behind just as did her mother's, and I do not believe that little girl had half as much pleasure in this state costume as girls of today do in their simple suits, free to run and jump or to do anything a healthy body prompts them to.

The chief aim in every girl's life was to be erect. To attain this young girls were simply tortured. Martha Washington, or, more correctly, Martha Dandridge, no doubt sat for hours in stocks or strapped to backboards. Stays and stiffened coats were made even more unbending by metal or wood busks. These latter were handsomely carved and elaborately decorated and were considered an elegant and appropriate gift to a little girl. These instruments did give the erect carriage the girls desired, but I do not believe they could skate or bicycle with much comfort.

Boys were dressed exactly like their fathers, in doublets, leather knee breeches, fancy waistcoats, leather belts and knit caps. They had an outer cloak called a mandillion, which was lined usually with a bright colored cloth and was very picturesque.

The most blameworthy custom in the dress of the boys was the universal wearing of wigs. These were expensive, costing £7 or £8 apiece ($35 or $40), and all boys over seven years of age wore them. After wigs went out of fashion hair was worn powdered, and, although it was becoming, we should be glad we do not wear our hair so, as the powder dusted off, ruining the clothes, even when the hair was oiled and pomatumed to overcome the difficulty.

With the exception of the state garments, imported by the very rich, all the wool and cotton used in the households were woven and spun by the mothers and daughters. Martha Washington not only wore homemade and home spun clothes, but helped to weave and make them. Nothing was wasted. Old scraps and pieces of worn garments were raveled, dyed and woven into cushions or chair covers. New gowns were few and far between, and, being fashioned with such great labor, I am sure Martha and all little girls who lived in her time took the greatest care of them. Even when she became the wife of the rich Colonel Custis and afterward of the great and good George Washington she was industrious, economical and simple in her tastes. We are told by one historian that, "although court etiquette prevailed in their public life, their home life was very unostentatious. All the clothes worn by the general and herself were made in the house. Two of Martha Washington's best gowns were of cotton striped with silk, woven from the ravelings of brown silk stockings and old crimson chair covers."

No high chairs, or in fact any chairs at all, were provided for the little folks when Martha Washington was young. Even at the table children stood respectfully behind their elders' chairs, taking what food was offered them. In the better families they stood at a side table with trencher in hand, bringing their food from the great table. They were never allowed to speak except to answer a question, and then with the greatest respect and courtesy. They ate very much simpler food than you do, for there were no railroads to bring them dainties from all parts of the world. They ate in silence, and as fast as possible, regardless of digestion, being expected to be "moderately satisfied" and to leave the room as soon as possible.

There were no kindergartens for the children of that time. Learning was a hard, uninteresting process, but the children were soon put at it and could read and write very creditably by the time they were five years old and were able to answer correctly every question in the Westminster Catechism. Boys read Latin and Greek by the time our children are just beginning to master the alphabet. Girls had little need of such accomplishments, but their simpler school lessons were increased by a thorough knowledge of hatcheling and carding, spinning and reeling, weaving and bleaching, cooking, candle and cheese making, knitting, embroidering and needlework of every description. Satan got few recruits from the ranks of the idle. Almost all waking time was filled with some useful occupation.

Children had few if any toys. The crudest of dolls comforted Martha when things had gone wrong with her. She may have had some dolls' furniture cut out by a jackknife, but I am sure she would have thought she was in fairyland could she have peeped into a modern nursery, filled with its almost living playthings.

Despite all these drawbacks (from our point of view) Martha Washington grew into a beautiful, loving girl and brought to George Washington domestic arts and home learned accomplishments which did more to make him happy than those we deem essential in our time. Mount Vernon, that ideal home of the southern gentleman of the eighteenth century, bears witness to her skill as a housewife. The "mother and daughter power" of the colonists gave a race of home bred, home loving, home honoring women. Although much in their lives seems odd and hard to us born amid the ease and luxury of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, we may learn many precious lessons from Martha Washington and those other noble women who lived when she did. Instead of condemning that which is different from our way of doing, let us reflect upon the industry, simplicity, system, orderliness and piety of those at whose primitive ways young people are inclined to sneer. It is also well to remember what clever Oliver Wendell Holmes meant when he wrote:

CHILDREN STOOD RESPECTFULLY BEHIND THEIR ELDERS' CHAIRS.

Little of all we value here
Wakes on the morn of its hundredth year
Without both looking and feeling queer.

Smoking meats without fire has proved such a decided success that even those who were disposed a few years ago to make light of the idea are now using Krausers' Liquid Extract of Smoke. The liquid extract does away with the risks and inconveniences attending the old smoke-house process. Meat smoked by the new method has a genuine, delicious smoke flavor; it remains moist and in a perfect state of preservation and is not infested with insects. The extract is made by distilling the smoke from hickory and maple wood and it is absolutely harmless. The makers, E. Krauser & Bro., of Milton, Pa., will send free to anyone, interesting printed matter about methods of curing and smoking all kinds of meats.
